THE Carmel Valley SUN

February 16, 1995

UP THE CREEK — Youthful performers who call themselves the "River Rat Cowgirls" brought tears and cheers from the audience with a rendition of "Hero" by Mariah Carey. They were among several musical groups who volunteered their time and talent for the successful benefit last Saturday.

Up The Creek flooded with support

By Virginia Parke

There were hands clapping and feet stomping. There were laughs and whistles. There were hugs. There were survivors sharing their experiences. There were tears of gratitude.

The renowned community spirit of Carmel Valley shown as over 700 attended the Carmel Valley Sun sponsored 'Up The Creek' Relief Benefit held at Hidden Valley Music Seminars Saturday night.

The funds raised go to aid Rosie's Bridge and Camp Stefani flood survivors. Out of the areas hit by the disaster, these areas suffered the most sever damage and loss.

Six musical groups performed for what is being called the "Carmel Valley Woodstock". As one participant commented, "I haven't seen this kind of community spirit in 30 years." One survivor tearfully related her gratitude for the support. "We were thinking about moving, but not now."

Hidden Valley Director, Peter Meckle posted congratulations to the community on the entrance sign indicating that

Taking tickets at the door, The Sun's Business Manager Kay Kirkland exclaimed, "We are totally out of tickets!"

Pebble Beach eyes Forest Lake Reservior

by Elizabeth Cowley

In September of 1994 the Pebble Beach Company opened its $34 million Water Reclamation Plant. This plant treats residential waste water for irrigation use and currently produces 800 acre feet of water, enough to irrigate all of the golf courses in Pebble Beach as well as several open spaces, and recreational areas. The Water Reclamation Plant is capable of processing more water but additional storage space is lacking.

The Pebble Beach Community Service District (PBCSD), in conjunction with the Pebble Beach Company, is looking into acquiring the Forest Lake Reservoir in Pebble Beach. The reservoir is currently owned by Cal-Am Water Company, but was abandoned as it requires considerable improvements to bring it up to seismic safety codes. The reservoir could store an additional 400 acre feet of water, which would allow the water reclamation plant to provide irrigation water to the Pacific Grove Golf Course and Cemetery.

The Pebble Beach Company has agreed to donate property to the PBCSD for them to "trade" with Cal-Am for the reservoir. Appraisals are currently underway to determine the relative values of these properties. Richard Andrews, General Manager of the PBCSD is "hopeful that the values are comparable," which would help the project to progress.

At the last PBCSD meeting the Board approved an engineering agreement with Parsons Engineering Science to complete the preliminary design. The preliminary design will outline the necessary improvements to bring the Forest Lake Reservoir up to seismic code and design an additional treatment facility to counteract any water pollution incurred during its storage in the reservoir. The Pebble Beach Company has agreed to reimburse the PBCSD for these engineering costs up to $285,000. $200,000 is allocated for the preliminary design, and the additional $85,000 is for a geotechnical report and other studies necessary for permitting. The preliminary design phase is anticipated to be completed in 6 months.

A PLACE IN THE SUN
Virginia Parke

Spectacular! That is the only word for what happened at the Sun sponsored 'Up The Creek' benefit Saturday night at Hidden Valley. After resounding appreciation for the "River Rat Cowgirls", Jenna Mahoney, age 10, Tasha Jones, age 15, Jessica Jones , age 12, Kristin Crane, age 11, and Julie Rogers, age 10 performance to the song "Hero" by Mariah Carey spectators began dancing.

Long time Valley residents Steve and Karin Doelman along with Eva Doelman were awestruck. Winston Thomas visiting from Texas indicated he never seen such enthusiasm and participation. Dr. Harry And Marilyn Raynes stood off to the side of the stage clapping and enjoying the bands.

Pat Arieas and Fred Sanchez rocked to the music along with Peter MacArthur, Joan and John Zelinski, survivors Bruce and Stacie Crane. Observing the gaiety were Fred and Pat Herro (perfect name for this event), Bill and Ann Marshall, Mark and Heather Himelrick, Alan and Wendy Crockett.

Dr. Brian LacKey with Tami and Brianna Lackey joined Jane and David Chaney. Corey Stainbrook, Marc Warshaw and Kevin Horan listening to the outstanding bands that performed.

I wish there was room to list all who attended. You each contributed to supporting your neighbors. You each made a difference.

$20,000 had been raised. As of noon Tuesday, February 14 that figure had climbed to $24,062 and donations will continue to be accepted. There were 34 grant applications received requesting $180,000 in aid not covered by insurance or other agencies.

Donations can be sent to the Carmel Valley Village Flood Relief in care of The Holman Ranch, P.O.Box 149, Carmel Valley, CA 93924. The grant committee is providing a base amount to all applicants with additional consideration to those with limited resources.

There is a grant providing a community dumpster to the residents for continuing clean-up. Carmel Marina Waste Management Corporation did donate several dumpster during the week following the flood.

There were over 50 cash donations to date, along with the 700 spectators who attend the event. Merchandise and services contributions totaled 160. More than 30 people supplied food and beverages. There were 50 volunteers, 31 musicians and six stage crew members providing their talent and time at no cost. Eight volunteers are on the advisory and grant committee.

Approximately 220 people pulled together along with 700 community member attendees to make it happen in three weeks with zero expenses. All funds raised are going directly to the survivors. An impressive accomplishment by any standard.

The primary organizer of this event, Dorothy McEwen of The Holman Ranch, expressed her amazement and pride at the community's response. "This is a special place filled with incredible community spirit. I love Carmel Valley!" Dorothy has been working 14 hour days assisted by co-chairs Kathleen Tarp and myself. "Since there are so many people to thank and donation are still coming in, there will be an update in the next issue of the Sun," she concluded.

So stand up Carmel Valley community and give yourselves at least a 5 minute ovation. The vocal trio of Thomas Duckett, Kathleen Tarp and Marj Ingram sang a tune from the Lion King movie titled "Can You Feel The Love Tonight" and answer resounded through Carmel Valley Saturday night "YES!'

New veterans housing available

Time is of the essence for those who served in the military and are interested in applying for admission to the new Veterans Home of California, at Barstow.

Although construction of the home is scheduled for completion in January 1996, veterans should contact the California Department of Veterans Affairs (CDVA) immediately to apply for admission, State Director of Veterans Affairs Jay Vargas announced recently.

"Veterans applying for admission to the home should call us at 800-952-5626. The phone call will insure that their name is placed on our waiting list," said Vargas a retired Marine colonel.

"The department will use this listing of names and addresses to mail out applications to interested veterans," according to Vargas, who said, "placing their name on this list is the best way for a veteran to let us know they want to apply for admission."

He said the department intends to begin mailing applications for admission to Barstow within the next 90 days and that applications will be processed in the order they are received by CDVA.

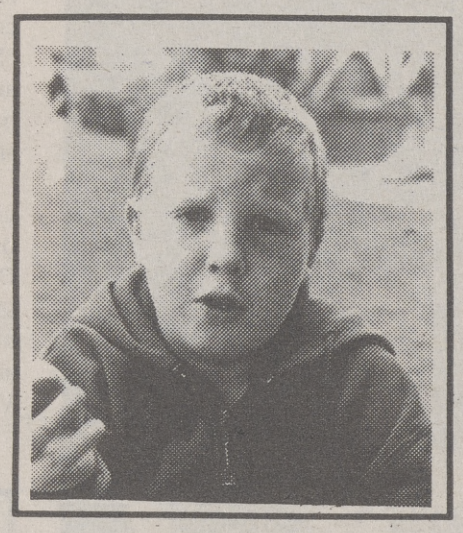
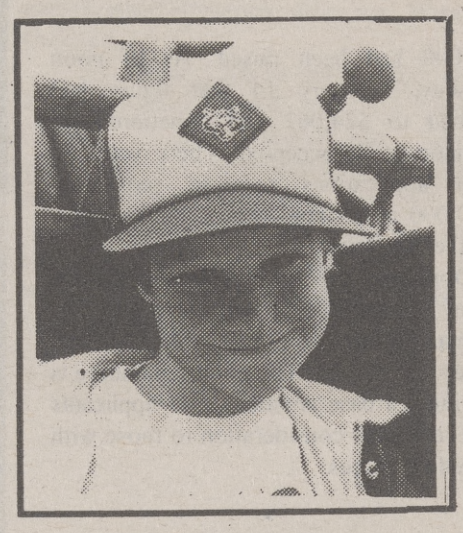
What do you think Presidents Day Means?

Creed Hunter - Age 8
It means we celebrate George Washington and Abraham Lincoln because they were important. They had good ideas.



Mark Brown - Age 8
Actually, presidents show you options. I often think of what I would do if I were president. I would be a really good president and make good decisions. You couldn't poison the grass on the golf fields, because it hurts the birds that live there.

Lindsey Knight - Age 9
To celebrate what presidents are and the reason why we have presidents.



Michael - Age 7
It's to celebrate a president's birthday. Presidents help to solve things. Abraham Lincoln signed a paper to stop the war.

Marine Sanctuary meetings are open to the public

by Elizabeth Cowley

The Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary (MBNMS) Advisory Council meets monthly to facilitate the management of the sanctuary. The MBNMS was created in 1992 and is the largest marine sanctuary in the nation, and the second largest in the world. The sanctuary encompasses 5,300 square miles of ocean along 360 miles of California coastline between San Francisco and Cambria. The MBNMS Advisory Council has 20 voting members, and is the only marine sanctuary with a Federally mandated advisory council.

In January, the MBNMS Advisory Council discussed the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) of the Acoustic Thermometry of Oceanic Climates (ATOC) project. Scripps Institute of Oceanography in La Jolla has proposed the ATOC project to measure oceanic temperature changes via sound wave transmission through the ocean from La Jolla to Hawaii. By measuring the speed at which these sound impulses travel, they hope to assess global warming trends. A DEIS was required under the National Environmental Protection Act to determine the potential environmental effects of the project, specifically the effects of sound waves on marine mammals.

The Scripps ATOC project will require a permit from the MBNMS Advisory Council, as the MBNMS project could potentially "harass" marine mammals protected within the sanctuary. The effects of the proposed sound waves on marine mammals is unknown. Potential adverse effects might be altering migration and other behavioral patterns and possible physiological damage to the ears of marine mammals. MBNMS Council Chair Karin Strasser-Kauffman stated that "While the sanctuary strongly supports oceanographic research, we have a responsibility to assure that research activities are conducted with minimal impact to the marine environment."

The next MBNMS Advisory Council meeting will be held on February 24 at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History. At 9:30 a.m. a representative from the Army will answer questions about Fort Ord related ocean clean up. Much attention has been given to cleaning up the artillery range and other toxic areas on the base; however little attention has been paid to the damage and clean up of the ocean affected by military activity at Fort Ord. The meeting is open to the public; for more information call 647-4251.

Indian Traders return to Monterey
Democrats elect new officers

The American Indian Traders Guild Exposition and Sale, California's only contemporary arts and crafts show restricted to authentic Native American goods, begins its 11th season with an exhibition at the Monterey Fairgrounds, March 3-5.

The show brings together more than 75 prominent Native American artists, craftsmen and traders from across the U.S. A vast array of arts and crafts -- both contemporary and antique -- will be on display throughout the weekend. Jewelry, painting, pottery, rugs, basketry, beadwork, weaving, Kachina dolls and quillwork are among the many art forms represented at the show.

All works were created by Native Americans of various tribal affiliations, including Navajo, Hopi, Zuni, Inuit, Cherokee and Paiute. Traditional entertainment will be offered on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, including spectacular American Indian intertribal dancing. On hand will be many Native American artists including Cherokee painter John Balloue and Navajo silversmith Stanley Lee.

The American Indian Traders Guild, Inc., was established in 1985 to promote quality and integrity in the creation and sale of Native American arts and crafts. All works on display at the expo are handcrafted by American Indians in North America and are juried by a Guild committee.

A few non-Indian produced items, such as related books, audio and video tapes and craft supplies are also available. The Guild presents approximately 20 shows per year throughout California, Colorado and Texas.

Hours for the American Indian Exposition at the Monterey Fairgrounds, 2004 Fairgrounds Road, Monterey, are as follows: Friday, March 3 from 2 to 7 p.m.; Saturday March 4 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Sunday, March 5 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets, available at the door, are $4.75 for adults and $2 for children 12 years old and under. Paid admission is valid for free return all weekend. For more information, call the Monterey Fairgrounds at 372-5863.

CVPOA looks at CV Master Plan

by Elizabeth Cowley

Brian Finnegan Esquire spoke on the Carmel Valley Master Plan and associated planning issues at the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) annual member meeting last Wednesday at 7:30 at the St. Phillips Lutheran Church. Mr. Finnegan has been working as a land use attorney in this area for 30 years. The CVPOA is planning to approach the Board of Supervisors this year and ask for a comprehensive review of the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Mr. Finnegan brought the first Carmel Valley Master Plan, only 3 pages long, which was created in the early 1960s. This plan set out to address water, traffic and development, the same issues of importance today. In the 1960s a "general plan was nothing more than a guide with no legal basis; zoning laws were at that time paramount. In 1971 the tables were turned as the California State Planning laws were changed to state that county and city zoning had to be consistent with the general plan. Thus the "general plan" became the "constitution" of planning, and zoning became secondary after 1971. A "general" plan has a legal status, a "master" or "area" plan only has legal standing in so far as it is adopted as part of the general plan.

The current Monterey County General Plan was adopted in 1982. The Monterey County General Plan breaks down the county in to 8 additional planning areas, none of which cover Carmel Valley. Carmel Valley is covered under the Greater Monterey Peninsula Area Plan which includes several unincorporated areas. In the 1980s the CVPOA approached the Board of Supervisors and requested that a Carmel Valley Master Plan be developed. A plan was developed and eventually adopted in 1986.

While the format of the General Plan is flexible, it must address at least 7 specific issues including land use, circulation, noise, housing, conservation, safety and open space. A general plan by definition is a "project" under the California Environmental Quality Act and thus the general plan, area and master plans and their amendments are potentially subject to an Environmental Impact Report (EIR).

An audience member asked why, if the General Plan is the "constitution" of planning, the Board of Supervisors revise and amend the plan seemingly at will. Mr. Finnegan replied that the Board of Supervisors is allowed to revise the plan but must hold a public hearing before both the Planning Commission and the Board of Supervisors as well as notify all neighboring cities, all school boards affected, all area wide planning agencies and all public water systems. The Board of Supervisors is only permitted to amend the plan 4 times per year; however the precedent has been to lump several amendments into one session or "time." If it appears that the Board of Supervisors is acting in violation of the general or master plan the recourse would be to sue the Board.

Mr. Finnegan's presentation made it clear that a comprehensive review of the Carmel Valley Master Plan will be a complex task requiring not only review of the Carmel Valley Master Plan but the Monterey County General Plan, of which it is a part, and potentially an EIR.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

Thanks to some thoughtful Pharaohs who built pyramids and drew hieroglyphics 60 centuries ago, today's anthropologists got a real break. In turn, it would be nice of us, our civilization winds down, to leave some clues to help future anthropologists, maybe 18,000 years ahead, to understand what happened to a remarkable civilisation, so technically advanced that it could harness atomic energy, and send humans to explore the moon, but wasn't intelligent enough to prevent overpopulation from unbalancing and destroying the resources needed for human existence.

Perhaps in the general area of Mt. Rushmore, fairly safe for a long time from destruction, as the Pacific teptonic plate slides under the American plate, we could build a huge concrete vault, using stainless steel reinforcing rods to prevent deterioration.

The inside walls could be stainless steel, engraved with hieroglyphics simple enough for scientists 18,000 years from now to understand. For example, an engraving of a human being shooting a huge cannon at another human being could mean that some of us died out because we didn't always agree on everything. Another might show a human running away with a lot of food, while a lot of others lie dying of hunger next to an empty food dish. This could indicate a number of things, that we'd rather all die than opt for large scale birth control, or that some of us (smarter than the others) didn't put much stock in either sharing power or sharing resources.

Perhaps one room could depict an alphabet, and how to communicate with various arrangements of the letters. The Pharaohs didn't explain that very well. Probably didn't even have dictionaries.

We should also have a room for statues of various important dignitaries of our time, President Clinton, Bob Dole, Newt Gingrich, O.J. Simpson, etc., not necessarily in that order.

Some notions about the number by which you are known

Have you noticed that your phone number replaced your Social Security number as the "number of choice" by companies everywhere? It goes like this: You go to a store that you think you've never been to and the cashier will ask you for your phone number. You want them to know your check is good so you don't hesitate giving it. Instantly, your life history jumps onto the computer screen, and the computer screen, and the clerk is asking you if your still taking yoga lessons!

As a real estate agent, this has been putting me on the spot. I try and make the world believe my home and work phone numbers are the same. For one reason, I don't want other agents in my office accidently showing my clients a house for sale. I also want my clients to know I'm always on call for them. (When I'm not working, I don't want anyone to find me!) The truth is I have so many numbers-office, direct line, car fax, voice mail, home, - I can't remember which one to give to whom.

"And what's your daytime number?" the counter person asks. While a line behind me waits. "It's the same as my home," I reply, "I'm a real estate agent..." As a good agent. I know I'm supposed to advertise what I do. But sometimes it's nice being more of a secret agents. Especially because of "the question."

It follows me everywhere I go. Buying a pair of shoes; ordering a pizza; at a hardware store; having my car worked on. Everywhere. It's inevitable/ "Oh yeah? How is the market these days?" The question is asked. Of course, everybody has heard the doom and gloom reports for the past two years. So with the question comes a sort of sorrowful/ pathetic nod, as if to say, "You gonna make it OK? Are the kids still eating well? (Is this check any good?)"

So naturally I want to explain that for many agents, like myself, 1994 was a great year in terms of production. Just because there are fewer homes proportionally being sold, doesn't mean individual agents must sell fewer homes. In fact, some agents are selling many more houses now than they did when the market was "good."

The level of service that must be provided to get those houses sold has had to increase also, I might add. Sellers are now getting more for their money in terms of commissions, because agents have had to improve their professionalism and knowledge of the business. Meantime, this is the best buyer's market in about 27 years. A lot of people have had to decide to keep their homes as rentals. Great fortunes have been built with the creed, only buy, never sell." Today's non-seller can end up way ahead in a few years from now.

Anyway, while the check-out line continues to grow, I can never say all this in the time I have. I wonder if I should give my fax number to the clerk next time, and avoid the discomfort. But I smile. "What's your phone number?" I ask. "I'll give you a call."

LETTERS to the Editor

An Open Letter To All Our Neighbors,

Magic happened in Carmel Valley Saturday night, February 11, and we want to thank everyone for being part of the miracle. An outpouring of concern, support, and love from the entire community made the "Up The Creek Flood Relief Benefit" a phenomenal success. Our original goal was to have 200 people attend and raise $5,000 for the flood victims of De Los Helechos/Rosie's Bridge, and Camp Stefanie. However, thanks to all of you, over 700 attended and we raised over $23,000!

The benefit drew people from all walks of life. Young and old enjoyed blues from the Unpaid Bills, acoustic celtic music from Heartstrings, the best blue grass in the land from Homefire, folk guitar and vocals from Pat Ireland, jazz from the Buddy Jones Trio, and pop vocals from Thomas Duckett (and Kathleen Tarp) accompanied by Gennady Loktionov. There was something for everyone but, truly, the most impressive thing was the wave of love that filled Hidden Valley Music Seminars throughout the evening.

Thank you to all the local merchants and businesses for donating to the silent auction. Please, read the last issue and this current issue of the Carmel Valley Sun and support those merchants who give so much to our community and help to make it what it is...acommunity who cares.

Special thanks to Norman Spaulding of the Carmel Valley Sun, and Jim Fitch of Holman Ranch, Daniel Barduzzi of Stonepine and Los Laureles Lodge, Carmel Valley Beacon, Peter Meckel of Hidden Valley Music Seminars, McCune Audio, John Macy, Marj Ingram, Stage Magic Productions, the Holman Ranch, Judy Attwell, Joan Vandervort, Laurie Swiess, Allan Marcus, and all the volunteers for making the dream become a reality. Thanks to all our neighbors for their incredible show of support and the best party ever!

Donations are still gladly accepted. The victims need amount to over $180,000 so keep those dollars rolling in! Make your checks payable to "CV Village Flood Relief" PO Box 149, CV 93924. Thanks a million!

Public Works has little to offer flood victims

By Virginia Parke

Survivors of the January 10 flood living in the Rosie's Bridge and Camp Stefani area met with Ronald Lundquist, Deputy Public Works Director on February 8. Lundquist is head of operations for the Monterey County Department of Public Works. The meeting's purpose was to discuss what his department could do to reduce the possibility of flooding in the area while fixing the county roads.

The residents expressed their strong convictions that a comprehensive approach is needed to keep the area from future flooding. "We want a complete engineering study to correct the water channeling system, not just adjustments in road construction," was the request.

Lundquist explained that flood control is the responsibility of the Monterey County's Water Manage-ment District. He indicated how-ever, that he would take all the actions possible within his department's jurisdiction to re-structure the Carmel River channel and rebuild the banks were the water crested. "We are meeting with Federal Emergence Management Agency (FEMA) to see what hazard mitigation funds, if any, the area might qualify." He stressed that he could not give a time for the meeting outside "the next couple of weeks". He committed to letting organizer Don Swiess know the results of that meeting.

The principle hazard mitigation being considered is the clearing of growth in the river just before the bridge. Lundquist stated that except for hazard mitigation, FEMA will only pay for damage such as the repair of the upstream banks.

One resident observed that the county has no storm drainage system on this area of the Carmel Valley flood plain. Another commented on the lack of account-ability for the actual flood event when the water surged rapidly within a four hour time window. "So far no one has explained specifically how that much water came at us all at once."

According to Lundquist, what-ever the restructuring or repair work decision, it probably will not happen until June at the earliest. "There is much drying out to be done before we can do any road repair work," he stated.

He recommended that the residents consider forming a "benefit assessment district". That would allow the collections of funds from property owners to accomplish road improvements such as drainage lines and speed bumps that would not be covered by county or FEMA funds. He pointed out that the Camp Stefani is probably a private road and therefore not covered by county funding.

There is a task force meeting Thursday 16, 3:00 P.M. at the Mid-Valley Fire Station to discuss further action.

CVPOA looks at illegal water pumping by Cal-Am Water

by Elizabeth Cowley

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) invited John Williams to speak at its Annual Members Meeting held last Wednesday at the St. Phillips Lutheran Church. Mr. Williams is a former Director of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) and a member of the Carmel River Steelhead Association. Mr. Williams spoke on Carmel River issues, timely in light of the proposed new Los Padres Dam and the hearings being held by the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) regarding the status of pumping water from the Carmel River area.

The SWRCB is currently holding hearings to determine if Cal-Am Water Company has been illegally pumping water from the Carmel River area. The water in question is most likely underflow; that is underground water that flows in the river basin. The question is whether underflow falls under groundwater regulations or surface (river) water regulations.

Mr. Williams is reasonably certain that the SWRCB will rule that the underflow is subject to surface water regulations which would require a permit and measures to mitigate the environmental damage. This suit was brought by the Sierra Club and the Carmel River Steelhead Association among others in 1987. Mr. Williams said that the state usually acts at "glacial" speed, but is eager to speed things up in time for the November election at which time the New Los Padres Dam project will be brought to the voters.

The plaintiffs want the SWRCB to require Cal-Am to acquire a permit to pump the Carmel River underflow and to require the associated environmental mitigation measures. Primarily the plaintiffs would like to see more instream flow to be accomplished through less pumping, and the release of more water from the dams. In addition to the underflow permit issue, the Sierra Club is suing Cal-Am for not providing more instream flows (releasing water from the San Clemente Dam) in dry years.

The basis for this suit is the "Doctrine of Reasonable and Best Use," article 10, section 2 of the California constitution. Traditionally "reasonable and best" has been ruled to mean municipal or irrigation use. However, in the current environmental climate, providing instream flows for steelhead habitat and other riparian "uses" has been ruled to be a reasonable and best use. Furthermore, if Cal-Am releases more water in dry years the water can be used twice; first for steelhead habitat and riparian uses and second, pumped for municipal or irrigation use downstream. Mr. Williams is optimistic that the SWRCB will indeed require Cal-Am to release more water in dry years.

Mr. Williams pointed out, and our current weather exemplifies, that our water supply is variable and attempts to determine what our water supply is or should be are guesses at best. Without knowing how much water we "have," planning and allocating water is delusive. Mr. Williams believes that the proposed New Los Padres Dam project will further degrade the environment and is a hollow attempt by the MPWMD to deal with water supply uncertainty.

Keeping your dog fit and trim

Just like humans, many dogs are out of shape and carry those few unwanted extra pounds. But dogs can't go out and join a gym or start a diet -- they need their owner's help. That's why the American Kennel Club (AKC) wants dog owners to make a pledge to get their dog(s) fit and trim in 1995.

To give owners a head start, the AKC is offering a free brochure, Keeping Your Dog Fit and Trim. These easy-to-read guidelines review general nutrition, dietary concerns and exercise routines. Some of the tips included are that table scraps are unhealthy for your dog; dogs only need one or two meals per day; letting your dog out in the back yard does not qualify as exercise; and that aerobic activity should be included in your dog's exercise plan.

You can order this free brochure by writing to the AKC, 5580 Centerview Drive, Raleigh, NC 27606.

Tips on seal watching during the pupping season

The SPCA of Monterey County alerts all Central Coast residents that the harbor seal pupping season (usually March through May) has begun on the Central California coastline.

It is not uncommon during the pupping season for tourists and beach strollers to happen upon what appears to be an orphaned harbor seal pup. In most cases, the pup is not an orphan, but waiting temporarily on shore while its mother is away foraging for food in the sea.

Well intentioned people who attempt to "rescue" these pups are not helping but, in fact, are permanently separating a mother seal from her helpless baby by preventing her from returning to it. The SPCA of Monterey County reminds all persons who come upon a baby harbor seal to respond as follows:

- Contact The SPCA of Monterey County's Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Center at 373-2631 or 422-4721, ext 227.
- Do NOT go near the animal, but try to observe from a distance, out of sight of the returning mother.
- Keep all dogs and people away from the pup(s).
- If, after several hours or observation, the mother has not returned for her pup, contact The SPCA again for further instruction.

The SPCA's Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Center, located at The SPCA, 1002 Monterey Salinas Highway (Highway 68), can handle any call regarding harbor seals.

The center's staff urges all residents and visitors to leave the seals alone, particularly at this critical time of the year. Human interference with the natural process taking place has a tragic impact on these wonderful creatures. Please contact The SPCA for any assistance or further information.

State report contradicts local studies on tourism

The latest report on travel impacts by county from the California Division of Tourism indicates that Monterey County experienced a 5.7% increase in travel expenditures in 1993. Spending by travelers generates jobs, payroll, and local tax revenue. Local taxes consist of transient occupancy taxes and local sales taxes applicable to travel purchases in eating and drinking establishments and retail stores.

The 1993 figures show that $1,144,826,000 total travel expenditures equaled $214,356,000 in payroll and accounted for 16,288 jobs in the area. This was an increase from the 1992 figures, which showed $1,083,332,000 in travel expenditures; $202,771,000 in payroll; and 16,177 in employment.

The following chart shows the total dollar impact by type of business.

Business	Expenditures ($000)	Payroll ($000)	Employment (Jobs)

THE RIGHT ATTITUDE MAKES ALL THE DIFFERENCE

When traveling in Europe, I once spent a night at a hotel where my room happened to be right above a tavern. The noise was so loud, I couldn't sleep. I had no choice but to venture downstairs. It was a memorable night. Colorful people. No English. Lots of Laughter! The stuff that travel is Made of . . .

Last weekend, I went to the coast and found a great little room that just happened to be above a restaurant and bar. When I went to bed, the Friday night locals had their noise contest. Swearing. Yelling. It drove me nuts all night. They stayed outside after closing, laughter and screaming until who knows when!

I felt robbed. I told the checkout lady I would never come back. They should have warned me there would be so much noise, I said to her as I walked out from the building that said "Hotel, Bar and Restaurant" on the sign.

What was the difference? First, my own expectations. When I was in Europe, I expected interruptions in my life. In fact, I was looking for interruption -- that's the reason that I went to Europe! When I was at the coast, I expected solitude and privacy!

Second, my level of awareness, the fact is I understood the language and recognized the vulgarity at the coast. In France it didn't matter who was saying what all sounded fascinating.

In my office I have a design that was given to me. It says: "Attitude is Everything." It's there to give me perspective. I need perspective a lot, especially when dealing with my clients.

Like everything else, the experience of buying or selling a home will be defined to one's attitude, which will be shaped by their expectations and level of awareness. I've come to learn that there are only five types of Real Estate clients. They are:

1. People who have never bought a house (because this was prior to seller disclosure laws, they are the most confused).

2. People who have never sold a house (because they realize that they didn't die through the buying process, they are the most trusting).

3. People who bought or sold their house before 1987 (because this was prior to seller disclosure laws, they are the most confused).

4. People who bought or sold their last house in another city or state (comparing everything to virtually an unrelated event, they are the most demanding).

5. People who bought or sold their last house between 1987 and 1990 (because the market was at its peak, they are now in denial).

Everybody fits here somewhere. And of these five groups there are those that expect it to be a bad experience, and those who expect it to be a good experience, and those who just know what to expect.

Their attitude throughout the escrow process, in fact their whole real estate experience, will be determined by the combination of the above ingredients.

Let me demonstrate: Someone who has never bought a home might expect everything to go smoothly with no hitch. Then reality hits. The lender is asking for a new document every week. The seller has decided to keep the stove. Their credit report has incorrect information in it. The appraisal on the house comes in low. The close is delayed two weeks. Their landlord rents the apartment so they have to move into a motel. At the final walk through, the carpets are filthy and the closet door has a hole in it. Welcome to real estate. Their lower level of awareness created an unrealistic positive expectation which resulted in a disappointed attitude. This is known as "baptismal by fire."

I just listed a property that was bought by a man in 1990, at the peak. He tore down the existing house and built a new home on this lot. He finished it this year. The last time he purchased a home was in 1986, in Kentucky. He bought it "as is" and fixed it up. His ex-wife now owns it. Though he's bought several properties, he's never sold one before. Obviously, this guy's a mess.

Earlier this year, he had thought he could sell it quickly and make a profit (positive expectation). When no one showed up after four months, he figured he'd have to hold on to it, so he leased it out (negative expectation). When he called me, he just wanted to know if there was anything that could be done -- he doesn't know what to expect anymore.

He has $150,000 into it. I told him he'd be lucky to get $130,000. He'll probably have to offer the tenants a $50 monthly rebate for cooperating with the sale and he might have to buy out their lease. Also he will have to spend $1000 cleaning up the construction debris that was left on the property.

He paused briefly on the phone, and said, "OK. I could use the tax write-off anyway, I guess."

Wow! What a great attitude, I thought, finding myself staring blindly at the blue sign on my wall. "Attitude is Everything." As my eyes focused, I realized that I sometimes go for months and only see a blue blob framed on that wall.

Local firms makes a practice of contributing to charities

At the end of each week, employees at Design Professional Insurance Companies (DPIC) loosen their collars -- and their purse strings -- for charity.

Friday is officially casual dress day at this Monterey-based professional liability insurance firm. For a one-dollar donation to charity, which is matched by the company, employees can exchange their suits, ties, and other business attire for jeans, sneakers and similar casual wear.

Started in 1994, DPIC's casual day program generated more than $1500 for charity by year-end. In December, employees voted to give $500 grants to the Hospice of the Central Coast, SPCA of Monterey County and Meals on Wheels.

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

Who said, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure?" Let me suggest five financial ounces of prevention:

If you do a spring cleaning, pop a blank videotape into your video camera - or a rented video camera, pull out all the drawers and open all the closets in your house, and film everything you own . . . including what's in the garage. Put the finished film somewhere else: a safe deposit box, a friend's or a relative's closet, a drawer in your downtown office . . . anywhere but your house. Then dig out your homeowner's policy and see if you will be paid "replacement value" for the contents of your home if it burns down or floats away. Reflect upon the replacement value of the items you just filmed, compared to what the insurance company may offer you upon total loss. If the difference is alarming, make an appointment with your insurance agent . . . and take the film.

Are your computer files important to you? When was the last time you backed them up? Where is the backup disk?

When was the last time you reviewed your will? Does it still say what you want it to say? This is your last chance.

If you operate a business, when is the time to sell it or liquidate, and how will that happen? If you do not know now, chances are you won't ever know . . . even when the opportunity presents itself.

Who is the beneficiary of your IRA or TSA or 401k or Profit Sharing Plan? Are you sure?

Ben Franklin?

Real Estate Thoughts

By William Smith

If your had planned to remodel or landscape your home or office but found that the budget just didn't accommodate your great design ideas, the Last Chance Mercantile Store may have most everything you need for the job. Operated by the Monterey Regional Waste Management District, the Last Chance offers usable reclaimed items to the public including windows, doors kitchen cabinets, toilets, bathtubs and lumber.

This innovative salvage and resale program is a well known secret to local bargain hunters and do-it-yourself fans, and the materials are on display every Friday and Saturday from 9:30 at the Marina Landfill. Bring cash or checkbook for an array of great buys.

Richard D. Shedden, Senior Engineer with the Monterey Regional Waste Management District, recently answered Monterey County listener's questions regarding the store and the landfill as a guest of William L. Smith on his radio show, "Real Estate by Pacific Bay."

Items such as bicycles, toys, books, patio furniture and garden tools are pulled form the waste and salvaged for resale. Handymen and builders retrieve bricks, concrete blocks, hardware and even woodburning stoves for restoration to functional use.

The District's Household Hazardous Waste Drop and Swap Program will take paints, pesticides and hazardous materials, recycling usable items free of charge. Reusable construction and household items are also taken at no charge, with a fee for any accompanying regular garbage intended for the landfill. Call the Recycling Hotline at 384-5313 for more details.

COME IN, UGO I WAS EXPECTING YOU.
PRINCE VARO WANTS...
I KNOW, HE WANTS TO SEE ME.
HE TOLD ME TO TELL YOU...
TO BRING MY POUCH.
BUT, UGO, I WARN YOU...
DON'T PICK ME UP!
FLASH GORDON
HIGHNESS, I'VE BROUGHT THE "STRANGE ONE."
PUT ME DOWN!
YES, MY PRINCE?
YEARS AGO, YOU LOOKED INTO THE FUTURE AND SAID THAT I WOULD ASCEND THE THRONE OF VEGA...
AND REMAIN ON THE THRONE FOR THE REST OF MY LIFE.
IT IS YOUR DESTINY
THE QUEEN HAS A CHAMPION, A PRINCE FLASH.

THE MAN FROM BEYOND THE STARS WILL BE THE INSTRUMENT OF YOUR DESTINY.
AND IF THE CHALLENGE REACHES THE THIRD TEST?
IN THE THIRD TEST, YOUR BLADE WILL TASTE HIS BLOOD...
...AND LEAVE A TRACE OF THIS DRUG.
HE WILL SOON BE DROWSY, UNABLE TO STAY AWAKE.
I LIKE IT, IT'S ELEGANT, STYLISH.
HE BECOMES DROWSY... THEN I KILL HIM!
